From Our Chairman

Our message is simple...

More than 7 million California students are fed, clothed and housed with products grown right here on our farms, in our fields and within our forests.

California Foundation for Agriculture in the Classroom is dedicated to helping students and teachers across our great state gain an understanding of how agriculture provides the daily essentials necessary to make our society and our world function.

From the cotton in our jeans and the food on our tables, to our landscaped yards and playing fields, we all depend on agriculture. The survival of our vital industry depends on educating and encouraging the next generation of decision-makers. We do this by engaging students and educators in meaningful ways: developing and sharing unique classroom curriculum, supporting school garden efforts, spreading our message at local Ag Days, honoring outstanding educators, rewarding students who learn and write stories about agriculture and so much more.

Your support makes all the difference. Thank you for your contribution.

Kenny Watkins, Chairman of the Board
Accomplishments of 2009

In 2009, we developed a new resource to encourage educators and administrators to support the creation or revitalization of school gardens. We divided California's diverse geographic regions into six distinct areas and created a school garden planting guide for each region.

These CROP Circles (California Regions of Optimal Planting) are easy-to-use diagrams that illustrate proper planting and harvesting times for 18 crops commonly found in California school gardens. These are optimal and recommended planting and harvesting times that can be altered to better suit individual microclimates or school calendars.

CFAITC was called upon by First Lady Maria Shriver's office to help establish the "WE Garden in Capitol Park" which was planted on the east steps of the state capitol in May. To help extend the hands-on, real world experiences learned in a garden back into the classroom, we developed a series of "WE Garden" lesson plans and activities that demonstrate overarching garden themes, such as Nourishing and Nurturing Soil With Compost, Following Food from Farm to Fork, Tasting and Testing the Harvest, and Observing and Identifying Garden Pests. Adaptable for students of all ages, the "WE Garden" lesson plans meet multiple CA State Board of Education Content Standards for 1-6 grades.
Accomplishments of 2009

In October, teachers from 50 counties participated in the annual AITC Conference in Sonoma County, where field trips, guest speakers, workshops, make ‘n’ takes, resource sessions and networking opportunities encouraged educators to teach with agriculture! Out of the 270 participants, 162 were first time attendees, and evaluations indicated a very successful 2009 conference.

The Foundation played a key role in the statewide Fresh Fruits and Vegetables Program (FFVP) trainings in 2009. These 9 two-day collaborative trainings were a joint effort between the CA Department of Education and CA Department of Public Health’s Network for a Healthy California. More than 700 educators were trained on how to support an increase of fresh fruits and vegetables on school campuses throughout the state in hopes of building healthy bodies and minds.

CFAITC’s web site is growing! At an average of 17,300 visitors per month in 2009, www.cfaitc.org is home to electronic versions of all our lesson plans, free resources, and our interactive Kid’s Corner: kids.cfaitc.org where students can play educational games with relevant ag topics such as heat illness, tractors and machines. CFAITC is also connected on Facebook and Twitter!
The 8th edition of our educational student newspaper, What’s Growin’ On? Cultivating Your Future focuses on agriculture related careers. The National Institute for Food and Agriculture (NIFA) provided funding for the development of the resource, and more than 500,000 copies were printed and distributed at events and as an insertion in several regional newspaper circulations.

Partnerships and outreach opportunities continue to expand. Some of the many organizations we have worked with in 2009 include CA State Fair, CA School Wellness Conference, CA Science Teachers Association Conference, CA Association of Pest Control Advisers Conference, State FFA Convention, Ag Day LA, A Garden in Every School Conference, Stockton Asparagus Festival, CA Agriculture Teachers Association Conference, Western Fairs Association Conference, Network for a Healthy CA Conference, CA Council for Social Studies Conference, CSU Monterey Life Lab Conference, Ag Day at the Capitol, Chico State Ag Day, California Women for Agriculture Statewide Meetings, Girl Scouts of America’s Ag Adventure, CA Master Gardener Workshops, multiple county fairs, and more.
Accomplishments of 2009

In 2009, Walmart signed on for the second consecutive year as the primary sponsor of the Foundation’s annual Imagine this... Story Writing Contest. More than 10,000 students in grades 3-8 researched and wrote stories involving California agriculture. The six winning student authors were selected and honored with special awards and recognitions. Winning stories were illustrated by high school art departments and professionally published in book form.

In July, Napa County state winner Dylan Adams was featured at a local Walmart Supercenter in American Canyon signing copies of the Imagine this... book during a California Grown campaign to encourage shoppers to buy locally grown products. In September, student authors, Eric Harrelson, Brook Jensen and Brice Lore also autographed and sold copies of the book among other California authors at the State Fair.
Accomplishments of 2009

The Oreggia Family Foundation donated $20,000 to sponsor CFAITC’s Literacy for Life Teaching Awards program. Arden Oreggia and his sister, Sabina, established the Foundation prior to their deaths to fund agricultural education endeavors and organizations. CFAITC’s Literacy for Life Teaching Awards program recognizes California educators making an extra effort to incorporate agriculture into their curriculum.

David Menshew, a biology and forensic biotechnology teacher at James C. Enochs High School in Modesto received the 2009 Literacy for Life Teaching Award. Menshew has developed a multi-year, high-tech science program that now includes elementary and middle school students. In partnership with the National Agriculture Science Center, Menshew provides free plant cell DNA extraction kits that allow students to perform investigations that meet state and national science standards.

Two other teachers awarded for their innovative use of agriculture in their classrooms in 2009 were Brenda Lacey, an agriculture teacher at Lone Pine High School in Inyo County and Suzanne Squires, an 8th grade science, health and art teacher at Los Olivos Elementary School in Santa Barbara County.

The 2009 Literacy for Life winners received awards, including cash prizes, and expense-paid trips to AITC conferences and the 2009 California Farm Bureau Federation Annual Meeting in Anaheim.
Success Story

I have witnessed thousands of students as they, many for the first time, register the importance of agriculture in their lives and better comprehend the science that supports it. By encouraging students at an early age to experience sophisticated, hands-on learning investigations, California Foundation for Agriculture in the Classroom is helping provide the much-needed relevance between concepts taught in the classroom, to students’ everyday lives.

CFAITC is a truly remarkable organization and has played an integral part role in our forensic biotechnology program through their efforts to provide us with high-quality, ongoing agriculture teacher training and support.

Formed by their own efforts, observations and experiences, students recognize the need for a sound agriculture industry to assure our own personal security and success. My hope is that students see the necessity of the agriculture industry and realize the greatest job security lies in the agricultural products we simply can’t live without.

David Menshew, 2009 Literacy for Life Teaching award winner
