

Where My Cereal Grows

The "heartland" of America produces the majority of grains used in cereal. Color a small circle on the legend and then color a small circle on the map to match the legend of the most productive grain states as well as those suited for production of the pseudocereal quinoa.

Wheat: Kansas, North Dakota, Montana, Washington, Oklahoma, and Idaho

Rice: Arkansas, California, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, and Texas.

Corn: Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Indiana, Minnesota, and Ohio

Quinoa: Colorado, New Mexico, Washington, California
