

Fruit & Veggie

Know your fruits and veggies?

These colorful cards include clues to help players guess what fruit or veggie is featured. From familiar favorites to the new and different, these cards keep players guessing!

How to play: take each flash card and read the clues. Feel free to make up your own clues as well. When the correct answer is given, reveal the answer by showing the picture.

Purple Grape

I grow in bunches.
I grow on vines.
I can be sweet
or tart.

Raisin

I am left in the sun
to dry.
I am the dried form
of a grape.
I am sweet and chewy.

Blueberry

I am small and round.
I grow on bushes.
Part of my name
rhymes with "you."

Sugar Snap Pea

I'm really not made of sugar.
I am plump and green.
You can eat every part of me.

Cucumber

I am long and green.

I am white on the inside.

I am used to make pickles.

Spinach

I am leafy and green.

People used to think I have more iron than I really do.

A cartoon character eats me for strength.

Celery

I am green and crunchy.

I grow in stalks.

I put my stalks together to make a bunch.

Green Bean

When you break me, I "snap."

Some people call me "string."

I have a long, green pod with beans inside.

Artichoke

I have many pointy green leaves.

My inside is called a "heart."

When you eat my leaves, you pull them through your teeth to get to the inside.

Broccoli

My name comes from a Latin word meaning "arm" or "branch."

I am green.

I look like a tree.

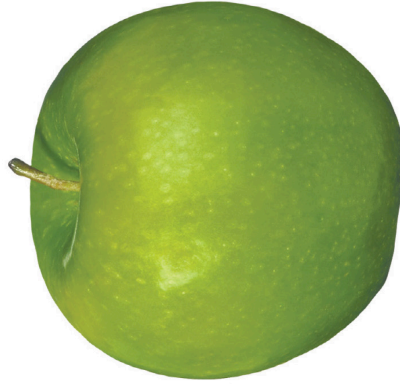

Green Apple

I am usually more tart than my red or yellow cousins.

I grow on large trees.

I am great in a pie.

Green Cabbage

One of me is called a "head."

I am light green.

I am great in coleslaw.

Green Onion

I am green on top, white on the bottom.
I have small, fine roots on the bottom.
My green parts are often used as a garnish.

Green Grape

I grow in bunches.
I grow on vines.
I can be sweet or tart.

Green Pepper

I am shaped like a bell.
I am mostly hollow inside, with some seeds.
I am sweet.

Asparagus

I grow in long green stalks.
I have small "spikes" on the end of my stalks.
If you cut the bottom off of me, I make a "spear."

Red Apple

Eat one of me a day to "keep the doctor away."

I grow on large trees.

I am red on the outside, white on the inside.

Lettuce

One of me is called a "head."

I am green.

I am the start to a great salad.

Red Potato

I am red on the outside and white on the inside.

I am usually smaller than other types of me.

I am used in soups or stews or just eaten boiled.

Red Grape

I grow in a bunch.

I grow on vines.

I can have a tiny seed in the middle.

Strawberry

I am bright red with some white inside.

I have a green leafy top.

I am the only fruit with seeds on the outside.

Red Onion

I am red on the outside and white on the inside.

I have lots of layers.

I can be sweet.

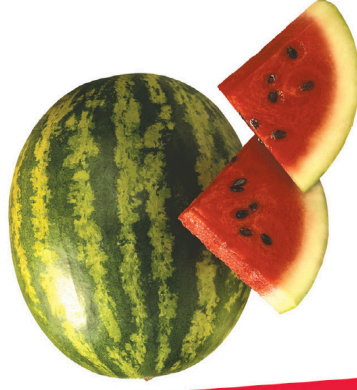

Watermelon

I can be large or small.

My green outside is called a "rind."

I am usually red on the inside, but I can also be yellow.

I often have seeds, but can also be seedless.

Red Pepper

I am shaped like a bell.

I am mostly hollow inside, with some seeds.

I am sweet.

Radish

I am red on the outside and white on the inside.
I have a green stem and leaves.
I can taste peppery or spicy.

Rhubarb

I am a vegetable, but people use me as a fruit.
I am often used in pies and jams.
I look like red celery.

Raspberry

I am small, bumpy and red.
I have a "hole" in the middle.
I often grow on thorny bushes.

Tomato

I'm really a fruit, but people use me like a vegetable.
I'm round and red with a little green stem.
If you fall behind, I can help you "ketchup."

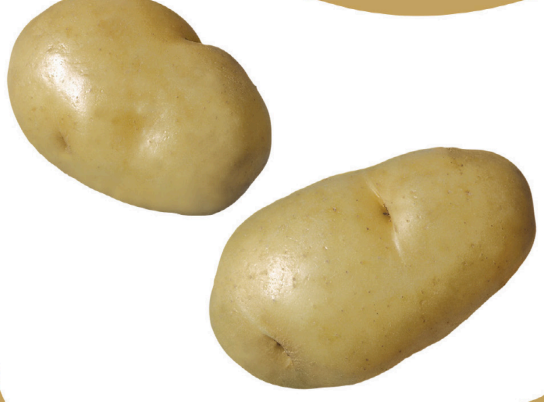

Onion

I have many layers.
My outer layers feel like paper.
I can bring tears to your eyes.

Potato

Some people call me "spud."
I am a very popular vegetable.
I can be mashed,
baked, boiled, grilled and fried.

Turnip

I have a bulb that is white at the bottom
and purple on top.
I have leafy greens
on top.
Some people eat
the leafy greens separately.

Cauliflower

I am white and bumpy with green leaves at my base.
My name means
"cabbage flower."
I can be eaten cooked or raw.

Cantaloupe

I am large and round.
My outside looks like it's covered with a net.
I am orange and sweet on the inside.

Pumpkin

I am a member of the squash family.
I can be large or small.
Everyone loves me at Halloween.

Yellow Winter Squash

I look like a yellow and green pumpkin.
I am a member of the squash family.

Sweet Corn

I grow on a stalk.
I have tiny seeds called "kernels."
I can be boiled, grilled or popped.

Rutabaga

I grow under the dirt like a carrot.

My skin is orange-yellow with a little purple.

I taste like a cross between cabbage and turnips.

Yellow Potato

I have a great tasting yellow flesh.

One type of me is called "Yukon gold."

I am great mashed.

Yellow Pepper

I am shaped like a bell.

I am mostly hollow inside, with some seeds.

I am sweet.

Yellow Summer Squash

I am a member of the squash family; zucchini is my cousin.

I have a long neck that can have a hook on the end.

I am yellow.

Yellow Apple

I am usually softer than my red or green cousin.

I grow on large trees.

I am great as a sauce or eaten whole.

Carrot

I am a favorite of rabbits everywhere.

I have a lot of vitamin A.

I am orange, with a leafy green top.

Original activity found at:

http://pbhfoundation.org/pdfs/pub_sec/catalog/WhatAmIcardgames.pdf

Activity adapted by Angie Greer to represent the specialty crops of Minnesota per the following two websites:

<https://www.mda.state.mn.us/~media/Files/food/organicgrowing/specialtycrop2009-12.ashx> and

<http://www.mda.state.mn.us/protecting/sustainable/mfo/mfo-fruit-veg.aspx>